

The Civil War

Although no battles were fought in Michigan, the state supplied more than 90,000 men to the war. This gallery provides a look at uniforms and weapons from the war and at disease, a greater danger to soldiers than injury. It also tells the stories of Sojourner Truth and the Underground Railroad.